From The Hobbit to Harry Potter, how fantasy harnesses the cultural power of magic, medievalism, and childhood to re-enchant the modern world

Drawing on the history and power of children’s fantasy literature, Re-Enchanted argues that magic, medievalism, and childhood hold the paradoxical ability to re-enchant modern life.

Re-Enchanted uncovers a new genealogy for medievalist fantasy—one that reveals the genre to be as important to the history of English studies and literary modernism as it is to shaping beliefs across geographies and generations. The influential “Oxford School” of children’s fantasy connects to key issues throughout this book, from the legacies of empire and racial exclusion in children’s literature to what Christmas magic tells us about the roles of childhood and enchantment in Anglo-American culture.

Maria Sachiko Cecire is assistant professor of literature and founding director of the Center for Experimental Humanities at Bard College.

Why this will sell
- Focusing on works by J.R.R. Tolkien, C.S. Lewis, Susan Cooper, Philip Pullman, J.K. Rowling, and Nnedi Okorafor.
- Follows the transformation of the children’s fantasy and adult literary fiction over the twentieth and twenty-first centuries.
- Argues that medievalist fantasy has become a psychologized landscape for contemporary explorations of race, gender, and class.

In recent years, asemic writing—writing without language—has exploded in popularity, with anthologies, a large-scale art exhibition, and flourishing interest on sites like tumblr, YouTube, Pinterest, and Instagram. Yet this burgeoning, fascinating field has never received a dedicated critical study. Asemic fills that gap, proposing new ways of rethinking the nature of writing. Asemic includes intriguing revelations about the relation of asemic writing to Chinese characters, the possibility of asemic writing in nature, and explanations of how we can read without language. Written in a lively style, this book will engage scholars of contemporary art and literary theory, as well as anyone interested in what writing was and what it is now in the process of becoming.
A cultural history of the modern lifestyle viewed through film and multimedia experiments of midcentury designers Charles and Ray Eames Happiness by Design offers a fresh cultural history of midcentury modernism through the film and multimedia experiments of Charles and Ray Eames and their peers at a moment when designers enjoyed a new cultural prestige. Justus Nieland traces how, as representatives of the American Century’s exuberant material culture, Cold War designers engaged in creative activities that spanned disciplines and blended art and technoscience while reckoning with the environmental reach of media at the dawn of the information age.

Eames-era modernism fueled novel techniques of culture administration, spawning new partnerships between cultural and educational institutions, corporations, and the state. The midcentury multimedia experiments of Charles and Ray Eames and their circle became key to a liberal democratic lifestyle—and also anticipated the look and feel of our networked present.

Justus Nieland is professor of English at Michigan State University. He is author of David Lynch and Feeling Modern; coauthor of Film Noir; and coeditor of the Contemporary Film Directors book series.

Why it will sell
- Includes designers in Charles and Ray Eames’ orbit, including Will Burtin, László Moholy-Nagy, and György Kepes, among others
- This is a prehistory of our present belief that happiness inheres on constant communication

Mainstream medieval thought, like much of mainstream modern thought, habitually argued that because humans alone had language, reason, and immortal souls, all other life was simply theirs for the taking. But outside this scholarly consensus teemed a host of other ways to imagine the shared worlds of humans and nonhumans. How Not to Make a Human engages with these nonsystematic practices and thought to challenge both human particularity and the notion that agency, free will, and rationality are the defining characteristics of being human.

By collecting beliefs and practices outside the mainstream of medieval thought, How Not to Make a Human connects contemporary concerns with ecology, animal life, and rethinkings of what it means to be human to uncanny materials that emphasize matters of death, violence, edibility, and vulnerability.

Karl Steel is associate professor of English at Brooklyn College and author of How to Make a Human: Animals and Violence in the Middle Ages.

Why this will sell
• Offers a posthuman and ecocritical interrogation of a wide range of medieval texts.
• Explores diverse topics such as medieval pet-keeping, stories of feral and isolated children, Chaucer, sky burials, and oysters, all from a dianthropic perspective.

A philosophical and cultural distillation of the bleak joys in today’s ambivalent ecologies and patterns of life

Bleak Joys develops an understanding of complex entities and processes—from plant roots to forests to ecological damage and its calculation—as aesthetic. It draws on scientific work in plant sciences, computing, and cybernetics, as well as mathematics, literature, and art in ways that are foundational to understanding ecological aesthetics and the condition in which the posthumanities are being forged.

“Bleak Joys is a tour de force—a survey of some of the most important ideas and environmental issues of our times.”
—Eben Kirksey, author of Emergent Ecologies and editor of The Multispecies Salon

“Bleak Joys takes us on an extraordinary exploration of aesthetic transformations in the era of the new climate regime.”
—Didier Debaise, author of Nature as Event

Matthew Fuller is professor of cultural studies at Goldsmiths, University of London.

Olga Goriunova is reader in media arts at Royal Holloway, University of London.

Why this will sell
- A philosophical and cultural examination of the bleak joys and paradoxical ecologies and forms of life
- Crosscutting chapters on devastation, anguish, irresolvability, luck, home, and more create a vivid and multifaceted approach.

Is dialogue always the productive political and communicative tool it is widely conceived to be? In Resisting Dialogue Juan Meneses reassesses our assumptions about dialogue and about what a politically healthy society should look like. Meneses argues that, far from an unalloyed good, dialogue often serves as a subtle tool of domination, perpetuating the underlying inequalities it is intended to address.

Meneses investigates how “illusory dialogue” is employed as an instrument that forestalls articulations of dissent that lead to political change. Resisting Dialogue demonstrates how novels are rhetorical exercises with real political clout capable of restoring the radical potential of dialogue in today’s globalized world. Expanding the boundaries of postpolitical theory, Meneses reveals how literature offers ways to practice disagreement against this regulatory use of dialogue and expose the pitfalls of certain other dialogic interventions in relation to some of the most prominent questions of modern history.
In this book, Ryan Hediger introduces a distinctive notion of homesickness, one in which the longing for place demonstrates not only human vulnerability but also intersubjectivity beyond the human. Arguing that this feeling is unavoidable and characteristically posthumanist, Hediger studies the complex mix of attitudes toward home, the homely, and the familiar in an age of resurgent cosmopolitanism, especially eco-cosmopolitanism.

“Ryan Hediger offers homesickness as a powerful human desire, a mode of interpretation, a corrective to increased mobility, consumer capitalism, and utopian cosmopolitanism, and a hopeful sensibility that connects us with others—exactly what we need in our troubled times.”

—Jennifer Ladino, author of Reclaiming Nostalgia

A bold call to deromanticize education and reframe universities as terrains of struggle between alternative modes of studying and world-making

In Beyond Education, Eli Meyerhoff traces how key elements of education emerged from histories of struggles in opposition to alternative modes of study bound up with different modes of world-making. Taking inspiration from Black Lives Matter, Occupy Wall Street, and Indigenous resurgence projects, he charts a new course for movements within, against, and beyond the university as we know it.

“Eli Meyerhoff deftly unmasks the engineered ‘romance’ of institutionalized education and engages the nuanced ways communities build practices of study and learning that are linked to struggle.”
—Erica R. Meiners, Northeastern Illinois University

“Incisive and moving, Beyond Education is an eloquent manifesto for a new university, one made to the measure of a new world.”
—George Ciccariello-Maher, author of Decolonizing Dialectics
What God Is Honored Here?: Writings on Miscarriage and Infant Loss by and for Native Women and Women of Color by Shannon Gibney and Kao Kalia Yang is the first book of its kind—and urgently necessary. This is a literary collection of voices of Indigenous women and women of color who have undergone miscarriage and infant loss, experiences that disproportionately affect women who have often been cast toward the margins in the U.S. Powerfully and with brutal honesty, they write about what it means to reclaim life in the face of death.

“Pregnancy loss is a most enigmatic human sorrow, unique to every woman who suffers it. These stories of resilience, grief, and restoration are essential, for to understand is to heal.”
—Louise Erdrich

“These writers have created a sacred space, a temple, in which the unspeakable can be shared in a way that honors their losses. A book of astounding grace and strength.”
—Thi Bui, author of The Best We Could Do

Shannon Gibney is a writer, educator, activist, and award-winning author.

Kao Kalia Yang is an award winning author of The Latehomecomer and The Song Poet.

Why it will sell

In a tale weird and whimsical, as familiar as folklore and as strange as life itself, musical artists Chan Poling and Lucy Michell create a world where even the most hardened soul has to see that grief may be tough, but life is tougher.

“Finally, a book with pictures that can put a waterproof mascara through its paces.”
—Dessa

“Jack and the Ghost is a book with readers who need it—they’re waiting for this book. It does its job with simplicity, charm, and beauty.”

Notable Book winner and international best-selling novelist

“The poetic pacing of the sorrowful story conjures the fancy that it would be best read out loud in a pub, fireside, with a storm battering the windows.”
—Publishers Weekly

Chan Poling is a founding member of the seminal New Wave rock group The Suburbs and the popular jazz/cabaret trio The New Standards. He has been featured, and lauded in the New York Times, The New Yorker, Time Magazine, Vogue, Rolling Stone, and others.

Lucy Michell is a musician and artist. She has written and performed with Twin Cities darlings Lucy Michelle and the Velvet Lapelles, pop rock crew Little Fevers.

These stories, set in Norway’s majestic landscape of towering mountains and dense forests, are filled with humor, mischief, and sometimes surprisingly cruel twists of fate. All are rendered in the deceptively simple narrative style perfected by Asbjørnsen and Moe—now translated into an English that is as finely tuned to the modern ear as it is true to the original Norwegian.

“In a translation as crystalline and pellucid as the waters of the fjords, Tiina Nunnally takes the stories that Asbjørnsen and Moe collected from the people of rural Norway, translates them, and gives them to us afresh. Each story feels honed, as if it were recently collected from a storyteller who knew how to tell it and who had, in turn, heard it from someone who knew how to tell it.”
—Neil Gaiman, from the Foreword

Peter Christen Asbjørnsen (1812–1885) and Jørgen Moe (1813–1882) were energetic writers and researchers best known for their monumental collection Norske folkeeventyr (Norwegian Folktales).

Tiina Nunnally is an award-winning translator of Norwegian, Danish, and Swedish literature.

A riveting family saga immersed in the gritty, dark side of Swedish immigrant life in America in the early twentieth century

Gustaf and Anna Klar and their three children dream of starting over when they leave Sweden for New York, finally settling in a cluster of rough-hewn shacks in a deep, wooded ravine on the edge of St. Paul, Minnesota. This haunting story of a real place echoes the larger challenges of immigration in the twentieth century and today.

“A rich and worthwhile read addressing the basic question of immigration—how does one make a life in a new country?”
—Mary Logue, author of the Claire Watkins mysteries

“Swede Hollow is a moving, at times harrowing, always convincing novel on a truly epic scale.”
—Steve Sem-Sandberg, author of The Emperor of Lies

Ola Larsmo is a critic and columnist for Sweden's largest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, and the author of nine novels and several collections of short stories and essays.

The new edition of a prize-winning memoir-in-poems, a meditation on life as a queer Indigenous man

Presented here with several additional poems, this prize-winning collection pursues fresh directions for queer and decolonial theory as it opens uncharted paths for Indigenous poetry in North America. It is theory that sings, poetry that marshals experience in the service of a larger critique of the coloniality of the present and the tyranny of sexual and racial norms.

“This book is a monument for the future of poetic possibility. Bravely buoyant, alive, and finally here.”
—Ocean Vuong, author of On Earth We’re Briefly Gorgeous

“Billy-Ray Belcourt’s voice is uniquely plangent and self-aware. This Wound Is a World is a world with worlds inside it.”

Werner Herzog's film scripts of his four early works, for the first time in English and in his signature prose poetry

_Scenarios III_ presents the shape-shifting scripts for four of Werner Herzog's early films: _Stroszek_; _Nosferatu, Phantom of the Night_; _Where the Green Ants Dream_; and _Cobra Verde_. This volume completes the picture of Herzog's earliest work, affording a view of the filmmaker well on his way to becoming one of the most original, and most celebrated, artists in his field.

“Herzog doesn’t write traditional scripts. Instead, Herzog writes scenarios which are like a hybrid of film, fiction, and prose poetry.”
—Film International

“A compulsively readable, probing collection. It’s equal parts challenging and satisfying, infuriating and enlightening.”
—Publishers Weekly

_Werner Herzog_ has produced, written, and directed more than seventy films, including _Nosferatu the Vampyre_, _Aguirre, the Wrath of God_, _Fitzcarraldo_; and _Grizzly Man_.

_Krishna Winston_ is a Marcus L. Taft Professor of German Language and Literature at Wesleyan University and translator.

Why this will sell
- _Scenarios III_ is the third and final book collecting the master filmmaker's prose scenarios for his most notable and early films.

A is for “Akta dig! Look out!” And when you do, you’ll see the nyckelharpa, or keyed fiddle, that Axel’s father made—which followed Axel from Sweden to America. You’ll also find Axel, a snappy dresser, with his umbrella and bowler hat. He’s one of the inquisitive characters who will accompany you on these pages, guiding you through the twenty-nine letters of the Swedish alphabet.

This fun introduction to the Swedish alphabet, a romp from A to Z (and then Å to Ä to Ö), is also a delightful tour of the American Swedish Institute in Minneapolis, a cultural center alive with stories past and present. Artifacts from the museum’s collection are charmingly rendered in watercolor and decorated with whimsical pen-and-ink characters that draw readers from page to page. Tara Sweeney and Nate Christopherson create magical realism in A to Zåäö. Their irreverent curiosity delights and begs a timeless question—how can exploration and discovery help us grow?

Nate Christopherson is a special education teacher and freelance illustrator. He received a Minnesota State Arts Board grant to illustrate The Island, an award-winning limited-edition collaborative artist book.

An encounter with a pheasant (which may or may not be sleeping) takes a surprising turn in this sweetly serious and funny story of a Native American boy and his grandma

“Pull over, Grandma! Hurry!” Johnny says. Grandma does, and Johnny runs to show her what he spotted near the ditch: a sleeping pheasant. What Grandma sees is a small feathery hump. When Johnny wants to take it home, Grandma tries to tell him that the pheasant might have been hit by a car. But maybe she could use the feathers for her craftwork? So home with Grandma and Johnny the pheasant goes . . .

It’s hard to say who is most surprised by what happens next—Grandma, Johnny, or the pheasant. But no one will be more delighted than the reader at this lesson about patience and kindness and respect for nature, imparted by Grandma’s gentle humor, Johnny’s happy hooting, and all the quiet wisdom found in Cheryl Minnema’s stories of Native life and Julie Flett’s remarkably evocative and beautiful illustrations.

Cheryl Minnema (Waabaanakwadookwe) is a member of the Mille Lacs Band of Ojibwe. She is author of Hungry Johnny, which was a 2015 Native America Calling book club selection.

Julie Flett is an award-winning Cree-Métis author, illustrator, and artist.

Two-time Olympian and four-time World Championship medalist’s journey

Brave Enough
Jessie Diggins
With Todd Smith

In Brave Enough, Jessie Diggins for the first time tells the story of her journey from the American heartland into sports history. With candid charm and characteristic grit, she describes turning pro straight out of high school and ascending to the world stage as one of the most decorated women’s winter athletes of all time, to fighting bulimia and internet trolls, from learning to love winter in the virtual snow globe of small-town Minnesota to championing climate action. Between thrilling accounts of moments of triumph, Diggins fills in the nitty-gritty of getting there, never failing to listen to that small, fierce voice saying: I can do it. I am brave enough.

Jessie Diggins is a Minnesota native and the most decorated U.S. cross country athlete in World Championship history.

Todd Smith is author of Hockey Strong as well as contributing writer for many sports journals, magazines, and radio talk shows.

How sampling remade hip-hop over forty years

Bring That Beat Back
How Sampling Built Hip-Hop
Nate Patrin

Sampling—incorporating found sound and manipulating it into another form entirely—has done more perhaps than any musical movement in the twentieth century to maintain a continuum of popular music as a living document, and in the process has become one of the most successful (and commercial) strains of postmodern art. Bring That Beat Back traces the development of this transformative pop-cultural practice from its origins in the turntable-manning, record-spinning hip-hop DJs of 1970s New York through forty years of musical innovation and reinvention.

Nate Patrin is a longtime music critic whose work has appeared in dozens of publications including Pitchfork, Stereogum, Spin, Bandcamp Daily, Red Bull Music Academy, and his hometown Twin Cities’ alt-weekly City Pages.

Providing a comprehensive study of the use of digital technology in American criminal justice, Brian Jefferson shows how the technology has expanded the wars on crime and drugs, enabling our current state of mass incarceration and further entrenching the nation’s racialized policing and punishment. After examining how the criminal justice system conceptualized the benefits of computers to surveil criminalized populations, Jefferson focuses on New York City and Chicago to provide a grounded account of the deployment of digital computing in urban police departments.

The framework that has led to the decline of the bluefin tuna

With regulations to conserve these sea creatures in place for five decades, why has ninety percent of the species vanished from the planet? In Red Gold, Jennifer E. Telesca offers unparalleled access to the International Commission for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT) to show that the organization has faithfully executed the task assigned it by international law: to fish as hard as possible to grow national economies. ICCAT manages the bluefin not to protect them but to secure export markets for commodity empires—and, as a result, have become complicit in their extermination.

A reflection on Italy’s postwar boom considers potential for resistance in today’s (dis)order

Clocking Out
The Machinery of Life in 1960s Italian Cinema
Karen Pinkus

What can 1960s Italian cinema teach us about how to live and work today? Clocking Out challenges readers to think about labor, cinema, and machines as they are intertwined in complex ways in Italian cinema of the early 60s. Drawing on critical theory and archival research, this book asks what kinds of fractures we might find for living otherwise, for resisting traditional narratives, and for anticapitalism. Reconsidering the origins of paradigms such as clocking in and out, “society is a factory,” and the gendered division of labor, Karen Pinkus challenges readers to think through cinema, enabling us to see gaps and breakdowns in the postwar order.

Karen Pinkus is professor of Italian and comparative literature at Cornell University. Among her books are Bodily Regimes, The Montesi Scandal, and Fuel (Minnesota, 2016). She is editor of diacritics.

A story for all ages, about a Hmong-American family living finding a way forward after loss

The Shared Room
Kao Kalia Yang
Illustrated by Xee Reiter

When someone you love dies, you know what doesn’t? Love. On the hot beach, among bright umbrellas, no one saw the little girl walk into the water. Now, many months later, her room remains empty and her mother and father, brothers and sister have her in their heart, vying with the grief that takes up so much space. Then mother and father tell the girl’s older brother that he will be moving into her room. Tenderly, and with refreshing authenticity and directness, Kao Kalia Yang tells the story of a family living with loss and learning how to keep their love safe and hold space for a lost child in their hearts.

Kao Kalia Yang is the award-winning author of The Latehomecomer and The Song Poet.

Xee Reiter is a first generation Hmong-American artist and illustrator.

Mary Logue, author of the popular Claire Watkins mysteries, brings her signature brio and nerve to the story of a young Irish woman turned reluctant sleuth as she tries to make her way in a strange and often dangerous new world. From the famine-stricken city of Galway to the bustling New York harbor, to the sumptuous new wealth of St. Paul, Minnesota, and to the raucous hustling of boomtown Deadwood, Logue’s new thriller conjures the romance and the perils, and the tricky everyday realities, of a young immigrant surviving by her wits and grace in nineteenth-century America.

Mary Logue has published thirteen adult mysteries, as well as poetry, young adult nonfiction and fiction, including Dancing With an Alien, which was an ALA Best Book for Young Adults and the New York Public Library Book for the Teen Age and the bestselling Sleep Like a Tiger, which won a Caldecott and Zolotow honor award.

In Black on Both Sides, C. Riley Snorton identifies multiple intersections between blackness and transness from the mid-nineteenth century to present-day anti-black and anti-trans legislation and violence. Drawing on a deep and varied archive of materials, Snorton attends to how slavery and the production of racialized gender provided the foundations for an understanding of gender as mutable.

“This book is an outstanding contribution to conversations about black and trans studies; it will transform scholarly understandings of both fields and the intersections between them.”
—CHOICE

“Black on Both Sides reminds us that when we are careful about how we tell stories, we get new, nuanced stories that expose systems for what they are and that honor historically ignored populations.”
—Autostraddle
A speculative exploration of value, emphasizing practical experimentation in its future forms

According to Brian Massumi, it is time to reclaim value from the capitalist market and the neoliberal reduction of life to “human capital”—time to occupy surplus-value for a postcapitalist future. In his theoretical and practical manifesto, Massumi reexamines ideas about money, exchange, and finance, focusing on how what we value in experience for quality is economically translated into quantity.

“Through the book’s deliberately fragmented form, Massumi presents a relevant and urgent dissection of the processes by which we are currently shaped, and a hopeful vision of how we might collectively outmanoeuvre them.”
—LSE Review of Books

“Brian Massumi has brought a rich perspective to bear on the deepest problem linking capitalism, ethics, and calculation: the problem of quality.”
—Arjun Appadurai, author of Banking on Words
A groundbreaking twentieth-century history of transgender children

Histories of the Transgender Child uncovers a previously unknown twentieth-century history when transgender children not only existed but preexisted the term transgender and its predecessors, playing a central role in the medicalization of trans people, and all sex and gender. Using a wealth of archival research from hospitals and clinics, Julian Gill-Peterson reconstructs the medicalization and racialization of children’s bodies.

“Meticulously researched and compellingly argued, this book is a welcome addition to a number of fields, including trans of color critique, childhood studies, and queer and trans history.”

—C. Riley Snorton, author of Black on Both Sides

“This work fills a gap in queer history for older trans, intersex, and nonbinary people.”

—Publishers Weekly

Julian Gill-Peterson is assistant professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh.

Thirty-five years of nonfiction films offer a unique lens on twentieth-century French social issues

The first sustained study to trace the origins of social documentary filmmaking in late 1920s France, Critical Mass provides close readings of individual films and addresses transnational practices as well as state- and industry-wide reforms between 1935 and 1960. It is an indispensable complement to studies of French nonfiction film, from Georges Lacombe’s La Zone to Chris Marker’s Le Joli Mai.

“The book provides a narrative that weaves together both well, and lesser known, examples into a fascinating tapestry of socially engaged and artistic visions of mainly urban French life.”
—Studies in European Cinema

“A powerhouse crowning the career of a distinguished scholar of twentieth-century studies, Critical Mass will be an enduring point of reference for the history of both documentary cinema in France and of the genre tout court.”
—Tom Conley, Harvard University

Steven Ungar is professor of cinema, French, and comparative literature at the University of Iowa. He is author of Roland Barthes: The Professor of Desire; Scandal and Aftereffect: Blanchot and France since 1930 (Minnesota, 1995); Cléo de 5 à 7; and coauthor of Popular Front Paris and the Poetics of Culture.

 Dispatches of radical political engagement from people taking a stand against the Dakota Access Pipeline

Amid the Standing Rock movement to protect the land and the water that millions depend on for life, the Oceti Sakowin (the Dakota, Nakota, and Lakota people) reunited. Through poetry and prose, essays, photography, interviews, and polemical interventions, the contributors reflect on Indigenous history and politics and on the movement’s significance. Their work challenges our understanding of colonial history not simply as “lessons learned” but as essential guideposts for activism.

Uncovering the class conflicts, geopolitical dynamics, and aggressive capitalism propelling the militarization of the internet

Cyberwar and Revolution argues that digital warfare is not a bug in the logic of global capitalism but rather a feature of its chaotic, disorderly unconscious. Urgently confronting the concept of cyberwar through the lens of both Marxist critical theory and psychoanalysis, Nick Dyer-Witheford and Svitlana Matviyenko provide a wide-ranging examination of the class conflicts and geopolitical dynamics propelling war across digital networks.

“Nick Dyer-Witherford and Svitlana Matviyenko attend to the specificities of tactics and technologies in light of geopolitical hierarchies and shifting configurations around imperialism and capitalism that animate the direction and impact of cyberwar across the globe. Erudite and yet riveting, Cyberwar and Revolution could not be more timely and urgent.”

Anthony Ryan Hatch demonstrates that the pervasive use of psychotropic drugs has not only defined and enabled mass incarceration but has also become central to other forms of captivity, including foster homes, military and immigrant detention centers, and nursing homes.

“A ground-breaking study of psychiatric violence in U.S. prisons—not as an exception to the rule, but as a normalized practice of prison management without which mass incarceration would be impossible to sustain.”

—Lisa Guenther, author of Solitary Confinement

“A powerful indictment of imposing psychotropics upon the caged powerless, building an unimpugnable case that unveils a deeply troubling pattern and also affords us the chance to end it.”

—Harriet A. Washington, author of Medical Apartheid
Grounding its analysis in regional political economy and neighborhood-based ethnography, Cyclescapes of the Unequal City uses the bicycle as a lens to view major shifts in today’s American city. It addresses a growing interest in bicycling as an urban economic and environmental strategy, its role in the politics of gentrification, and efforts to build more diverse coalitions of bicycle advocates.

“A wake-up call to current cycling policy, this comparative study underlines how race, class, and gender are formed in relation to mobility practices in urban space.”

—Mimi Sheller, author of Mobility Justice

“Through rigorous empirical research and thoughtful analysis, Stehlin illuminates the emergence of a complex politics of mobility that stems from the intersection of cycling and urban change.”

—Kathe Newman, Rutgers University
How did a powerful concept in international justice evolve into an inequitable response to mass suffering?

Benjamin Meiches traces how the concept of genocide came to acquire such significance on the global political stage. By mapping the multiplicity of forces that entangle the concept in larger assemblages of power, he provides a new understanding of how the language of genocide impacts contemporary political life, especially as a means of protesting the social conditions that produce mass violence.

“Benjamin Meiches’s extraordinary genealogy of the notion of genocide since its coinage during World War II is especially welcome, blending empirical cases, historical perspectives, and theoretical considerations in an ideal fashion. Emphasizing the lability of this concept before it was fixed in our time, for better or worse, Meiches shows how talk of genocide has allowed for moralizing in a violent world, even as it obstructs other perspectives that the future will require.”

—Samuel Moyn, Yale Law School

Benjamin Meiches is assistant professor of security studies and conflict resolution at the University of Washington–Tacoma.
Politics, craft, and cultural nostalgia in the remaking of Star Wars for a new age

Focusing on The Force Awakens (2015), Rogue One (2016), The Last Jedi (2017), and the television series Rebels (2014–18), Dan Golding explores the significance of pop culture nostalgia in overcoming the skepticism, if not downright hostility, that greeted the Star Wars relaunch. In its granular textual readings, broad cultural scope, and insights into the complexities of the multimedia galaxy, this book is as entertaining as it is enlightening.

“Star Wars is almost too big a subject for any one mind to grasp, but Dan Golding’s look at how the franchise maintains its nostalgic glow in the Disney era stays on target, excavating the unique combination of art and commerce that holds Star Wars together.”

—Adam Rogers, deputy editor of Wired

“Strikes a perfect balance between criticism and knowledgeable fandom.”

—Dan Hassler-Forest, coeditor of Star Wars and the History of Transmedia Storytelling

Dan Golding is lecturer in media and communications at the Swinburne University of Technology and an award-winning writer with more than two hundred international publications. Exploring the expansion of the carceral state and its oppressive social relations into everyday life

Brett Story investigates the production of carceral power at a range of sites, from buses to coalfields and from blighted cities to urban financial hubs, to demonstrate how the organization of carceral space is ideologically and materially grounded in racial capitalism. By framing the prison as a set of social relations, Prison Land forces us to confront the production of new carceral forms that go well beyond the prison system.

“Brett Story, as both a filmmaker and writer, is a visionary with rigor and heart. She balances, wonderfully, human narratives and big, structural effects. Story sees what’s all around us and yet lies hidden: that we live in a landscape of exclusions and controls, but only for some, and that the organization of this landscape is no accident, but by design.”

—Rachel Kushner, author of The Mars Room and The Flamethrowers
A lifetime of cinematic writing culminates in this breathtaking statement on film’s unique ability to move us

In The Eloquent Screen, influential film critic Gilberto Perez makes a capstone statement on the powerful ways in which film acts on our minds and senses. Drawing on a lifetime’s worth of viewing and reviewing, Perez invokes a dizzying array of masters past and present—including Chaplin, Ford, Kiarostami, Eisenstein, Malick, Mizoguchi, Haneke, Hitchcock, and Godard—to explore the transaction between filmmaker and audience.

On his untimely death in January 2015, Gilberto Perez had completed the manuscript for his second book, The Eloquent Screen, save for a planned brief preface and acknowledgments. Several of the writings, which would later be included in the manuscript, were originally published in the Yale Review, London Review of Books, Senses of Cinema, and elsewhere. The preface that now opens this volume has been drawn from his earlier statements about his intentions for the work.

Gilberto Perez (1943–2015) held the Noble Chair in Art and Cultural History at Sarah Lawrence College and was author of The Material Ghost: Films and Their Medium. He was film critic for The Yale Review and his essays on film have been published in The Nation, the New York Times, and the London Review of Books.

Why it will sell
- A continuation of Perez’s 1998 book The Material Ghost
- Of Perez, Sight & Sound said “Perez seems to be the clearest heir to the great humanistic critic André Bazin.”
- Of The Material Ghost, Cineaste said “Few books of film criticism in the past twenty-five years have been so enjoyable.”
A reevaluation of Édouard Glissant that centers on the catastrophe of the Middle Passage and creates deep, original theories of trauma and Caribbeanness

Glissant and the Middle Passage establishes Édouard Glissant’s proper place as a key theorist of ruin, catastrophe, abyss, and memory. Identifying his insistence on memories and histories tied to place as the crucial geography at the heart of his work, this book imparts an innovative new response to the specific historical experiences of the Middle Passage.

In dialogue with key theorists of catastrophe and trauma—including Aimé Césaire, Frantz Fanon, George Lamming, Gilles Deleuze, Félix Guattari, Derek Walcott, as well as key figures in Holocaust studies—Glissant and the Middle Passage hones a sharp sense of the specifically Caribbean varieties of loss, developing them into a transformative philosophical idea.
A young woman from Minnesota searches out the Colombian father she’s never known in this powerful exploration of what family really means

In 1995, Anika Fajardo flew to Colombia to discover a birthplace that was foreign to her and a father who was a stranger. Vivid and heartfelt in the telling, Fajardo’s story is powerfully compelling in its bridging of time and place and in its moving depiction of self-transformation. Family, she comes to find, is where you find it and what you make of it.

“Incredibly well written and compelling. I felt like I was reading about my own life and the price I paid for assimilation and acculturation. I simply couldn’t put it down.”
—Pablo Medina, author of The Island Kingdoms

“Bewitching and beautiful, bound to move anyone who was ever a parent or a child, and just as compelling (and magical) the second time around.”

Inside the Gate offers readers a rare glimpse into Sigrid Undset’s life at her home, Bjerkebæk, now a museum and national landmark. Immensely protective of her privacy, Undset filled the timbered house with books and created a writing space where she authored many of her famous works, including Kristin Lavransdatter. There she also raised her three children, tended to her beloved garden, and welcomed close friends and family members during three decades of personal joys, sorrows, and hard work. Drawing on a wealth of historical documents, Nan Bentzen Skille’s lively narrative presents an intimate portrait with photographs vividly illustrating the text.

A bittersweet, seriously funny novel of a life, a small town, and a key to our troubled times traced through a newspaper columnist’s half-century of taking in, and taking on, the world

With her customary warmth and wit, Lorna Landvik summons a lifetime at once lost and recovered, a complicated past that speaks with knowing eloquence to a confused present. Her topical but timeless Chronicles of a Radical Hag reminds us of the power of words and of silence, as well as the wonder of finding in each other what we never even knew we were missing.

“Smart, funny, and intimate, with a terrifically memorable cast of small-town characters.”
—Julie Schumacher, author of The Shakespeare Requirement

“At a time when local newspapers are nearing extinction, and reporters are deemed enemies of the people, Landvik’s smart and lovely paean to journalists is a welcome reminder of the important role they play.”

Two lost sisters find family, and themselves, among the voices of an Ojibwe reservation

Some ruptures simply cannot be repaired; they can only be lived through, or lived with. Linda LeGarde Grover returns to the fictional Mozhay Point Reservation in this nuanced, moving, often humorous picture of two Ojibwe girls becoming women in the long, sharply etched shadow of Native American history.

“Grover creates a tapestry of history and imagination, a weaving of perspectives beautiful and wise, a collection of truths that anchors and honors the experiences of Indigenous women.”
—Kao Kalia Yang, author of The Song Poet

“In the Night of Memory, its vast, distinct chorus of matrilineal American Indian voices ring in melancholic yet dauntless tones, clarifying that community and nurturing can ameliorate absence.”

A masterful blend of fiction and autobiography

Inspired by Helene Uri’s own journey into her family’s ancestry, Clearing Out is an emotionally resonant novel by one of Norway’s most celebrated authors. In its depiction of the forgotten and the fiercely held memories among the Sea (sjø) Sami of northern Norway, the novel is a powerful statement on what is lost, and what remains in reach, in the character and composition of contemporary life.

“Lyrical, brave, and luminous, Clearing Out offers the overdue translation of a signature Norwegian voice into rapturous English.”
—Rebecca Dinerstein, author of The Sunlit Night

The first English publication of Sami folktales from Scandinavia collected and illustrated in the early twentieth century

These stories, collected by the Danish artist and ethnographer Emilie Demant Hatt during her travels in the early twentieth century among the nomadic Sami in Swedish Sápmi, grant entry to a fascinating world of wonder and peril, of nature imbued with spirits, and strangers to be outwitted with gumption and craft. This first English publication of By the Fire is at once a significant contribution to the canon of world literature, a unique glimpse into Sami culture, and a testament to the enduring art of storytelling.

“Outside in the deepest night wander the dead, the spirits, the evil thoughts one person sends another. . . Here inside the tent is the campfire; here is home, the great safe place.”
—Emilie Demant Hatt, from the Introduction

“Barbara Sjoholm’s translation renders these wonderful stories in all their darkness and power.”
—Coppélia Cocq, Umeå University

Emilie Demant Hatt (1873–1958) was a Danish artist and ethnographer who lived among the Sami of Swedish Lapland in the first two decades of the twentieth century. Her account of this time was published in English as With the Lapps in the High Mountains, translated by Barbara Sjoholm.

Barbara Sjoholm is a writer, editor, and translator of Danish and Norwegian literature. Her books include Black Fox: A Life of Emilie Demant Hatt, Artist and Ethnographer.

In the fourth volume of a series set in Minneapolis in the 1960s, three friends navigate relationships and new questions about love and identity.

“Normal” might not be all it’s cracked up to be. As three old friends, with adulthood looming, navigate the newly confusing territory of love and sexuality and identity, everything they thought they knew is suddenly, frighteningly thrown into question—and they discover that between the dream of stardom and the certainty of housekeeping there’s a vast unsuspected world of peril and possibility.

“Jane St. Anthony keenly captures the essence of coming of age: that irreversible moment of discovery that the world is much greater and deeper than you have imagined—and that other people’s lives are as big as your own.”
—Jane O’Reilly, author of The Secret of Goldenrod

“Let’s dispense with the usual old notions of preserving,” Beth Dooley suggests, leading us into Mette Nielsen’s kitchen, where old-world Danish traditions meld with the freshest ideas and latest techniques. Their approach combines the bright, bold flavors of Nordic cuisines while emphasizing the local, the practical, and the freshest ingredients to turn each season’s produce into a bounty of condiments.

“This delightful book is full of promise—the promise of summer being everlasting.” —Deborah Madison, author of Vegetable Literacy and The New Vegetarian Cooking for Everyone

“There are 200 pages of recipes here to keep you occupied during harvest season and ensure that you’ll have a stocked pantry in the coldest, most barren months.” —City Pages

Beth Dooley is a James Beard Award-winning author and coauthor of several cookbooks.

Mette Nielsen’s photographs have graced the pages of books, newspapers, and magazines.

Manifold Scholarship

Come talk to us about Manifold, the intuitive, collaborative, open-source platform for scholarly publishing you’ve been waiting for.

We’ve built Manifold with real users in mind. It’s easy to install, fast, intuitive, and provides the means to effortlessly convert your existing files into online publications. Responsive by design, Manifold provides a beautiful, deep reading experience that fosters community and encourages discussion on all modern devices.

Whether you’re a reader, an author, or a publisher, Manifold is for you.

Manifold is the result of a four-year long collaboration between the University of Minnesota Press, the Graduate Center at the City University of New York, and Cast Iron Coding, a digital development agency staffed with humanities scholars. Manifold is funded by a grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.
