2342, Integrative Approaches to Studying Mental Health Disparities

12:30–2:10 pm

PANEL

MULTIPLE AUTISMS

Ten years ago, Carol Aneshensel published “Toward Explaining Mental Health Disparities” with the goal of advancing sociological models that explain the social determinants and consequences of social inequality. For this session, we seek papers that address how health disparities impact mental health and mental health care. Papers may include work that draws on theoretical frameworks within sociology, highlight interdisciplinary scholarship, and/or advance diverse methodologies in the study of social inequality and mental health. Sub Unit: Section on Sociology of Mental Health.

Presider and discussant: Alex E. Bierman.

Presentations: Faith M. Deckard, Bridget Goosby, Jacob E. Cheadle: The “Labor vs. Worth Tax”: Making Sense of Educational Debt in a Racialized Society. ## 2406, Queering Work: How Trans and Non-binary People Resist and Negotiate Power and Inequality in Work

2:30–4:10 pm PANEL MEN IN PLACE

This panel queers notions of “work” in two significant ways to add to existing conversations in sociology: 1) Examining how trans and/or non-binary people negotiate the intersections of power and inequality in work. Panelists will discuss how workers navigate gender and resist inequalities in labor; and 2) Expanding the boundaries of “work” itself to include a broad conception of work, such as emotional labor, sex work, migrant labor, un- and underemployment, domestic work, and wage work. Sub Unit: Thematic Sessions.

Presider: Tiffany Jordan Chuang May.

Panelists: Miriam J. Abelson, Chelle Jones, Ellen Lamont, Stef M. Shuster, Laurel Westbrook.

3217, Youth Leadership and Social Change Through an Intersectional Lens

10:30 am–12:10 pm PANEL ACADEMIC PROFILING

Youth activism is on the rise. Kids are engaging with social justice movements and public policy reform on an international level. From teen climate activists to high school survivors of mass shootings who are now some of the most vocal gun control advocates, kids are speaking out about social problems that affect their lives and futures. This session invites papers that focus on youth activism through an intersectional lens. Papers can cover a broad range of topics pertaining to youth-led resistance work and social movements. Papers that explore kids' relationship to queer and feminist movements are especially welcomed. Sub Unit: Section on Race, Gender, and Class.
