“Digitize and Punish is pathbreaking. It is an example of what interdisciplinary training and spatial thinking should be.”

—Rashad Shabazz, author of Spatializing Blackness

Digitize and Punish
Racial Criminalization in the Digital Age
BRIAN JEFFERSON

Brian Jefferson explores the history of digital computing and criminal justice, revealing how big tech, computer scientists, university researchers, and state actors have digitized carceral governance over the past forty years. He shows how digital technology has expanded the wars on crime and drugs, enabling our current state of mass incarceration and further entrenching the nation’s racialized policing and punishment.

The Death of Asylum
Hidden Geographies of the Enforcement Archipelago
ALISON MOUNTZ

Alison Mountz traces the global chain of remote detention centers used by states of the Global North to confine migrants fleeing violence and poverty, using cruel measures that, if unchecked, will lead to the death of asylum as an ethical ideal. By focusing on borderlands and spaces of transit between regions, The Death of Asylum shows how remote sites curtail the basic human right to seek asylum, forcing refugees to take more dangerous risks.

—Alison K. Hoagland, author of Mine Towns

How the Working-Class Home Became Modern, 1900–1940
THOMAS C. HUBKA

At the turn of the nineteenth century, the average American family still lived by kerosene light, ate in the kitchen, and used an outhouse. By 1940, electric lights, dining rooms, and bathrooms were the norm as the traditional working-class home was fast becoming modern. Thomas C. Hubka revises our understanding of how widespread domestic improvement transformed the lives of Americans.

“A brilliant book about the Janus-faced nature of neoliberal biopolitics.”
—Jonathan Xavier Inda, author of Racial Prescriptions

Deadly Biocultures
The Ethics of Life-Making
NADINE EHLERS AND SHILOH KRUPAR

Deadly Biocultures examines the affirmation to hope, target, thrive, secure, and green in the respective biocultures of cancer, race-based health, fatness, aging, and the afterlife. Its chapters focus on specific practices, technologies, or techniques that ostensibly affirm life and suggest life’s inextricable links to capital but that also engender a politics of death and erasure.
